Japanese Calendar

A new year has begun and now it is Heisei 29, but why does the fiscal year still show as being the 28th year of Heisei? I can't understand how Japanese calendar works (how the years are counted)...

①

Japan has an imperial era name system called Gengo to count the number of years. Heisei 29 is 2017.

But, it's still in the 28th fiscal year of Heisei until March, isn't it? Why?

That is because a fiscal year starts in April and ends in March. The same goes with the school year and business year.

I see. That's why schools have entrance ceremonies in April and graduation ceremonies in March.

②

By the way, I heard I was born in Showa era, but my child was born in Heisei era. Why are our era names different?

It's an imperial era and whenever the emperor changes, the era name changes to a new one. Incidentally, it is said that the first era name started in year 645, and the name of the era was Taika.

③

Are there any other countries like Japan which have their own era and count the number of years not using the Christian Era?

④

Taiwan has the era name called Minkoku. The name is given to show expiration dates and so on besides the Christian era. Year 1912 is the first year of Minkoku, so this year is the 106th year of Minkoku.

Thailand is a Buddhist country, and it has its own Buddhist calendar called Butsureki. To count the calendar, 543 years is added to the Christian year, so this year is the 2560th year in the Buddhist calendar.

⑤

I would like to know how I can convert my birth year into the Japanese calendar easily.

It's easy if you use magic numbers, "12" and "25."
"Heisei" started on January 8, 1989. If you want to know a year later than year 1989, then the "Last two digits of the year + 12" is the Japanese year. Taking 2017 as an example, the last 2 digits are " $17 + 12 = 29$ ", so 2017 is Heisei 29.
"Showa," before Heisei, started on December 25, 1926 and ended on January 8, 1989. If you want to know a year in Showa, then the "Last two digits of the year - 25" is the Showa year. Taking 1982 as an example, the last 2 digits are " $82 - 25 = 57$," so year 1982 is Showa 57. Please use that technique for reference.

Separating Garbage

Why does garbage have to be separated?

Garbage contains many items that can be recycled. Separating garbage determines the future of the various items, whether they will be thrown out, or used again in a different way (recycled). For example, a used steel can may be reused in the form of a steel product. However, if garbage is not separated, then it may all be burned and buried, and unable for further use as a resource. In addition, if garbage is not separated properly, then later extra work is required to remove items mixed in that cannot be recycled, and dealing with dirty items is quite challenging.

How is garbage separated?

Garbage is sorted into the following 5 categories and 13 types.

Category	Garbage type
Recyclables (items that can be recycled)	① Newspaper Newspaper (including advertisements)
	② Cardboard Cardboard
	③ Magazines & other paper Books, magazines, packaging paper, memo paper, snack boxes, calendars, etc.
	④ Milk cartons Paper cartons for milk or juice that are white inside
	⑤ Fabrics Clothing, futon covers, towels, etc.
	⑥ Bottles and cans Beverage bottles & cans (juice, beer, etc.), food jars & cans (jam jars, tuna cans, etc.), medicine bottles (beverage bottles, etc.), cosmetic bottles
	⑦ PET bottles PET bottles containing beverages, soy sauce, alcohol, etc.
	⑧ White foam trays White foam (polystyrene) trays with no color or design that are used for fish, meat, side dishes, etc.
	⑨ Plastic containers Plastic containers and packaging such as snack bags, egg cartons, PET bottle caps, shampoo bottles, etc.
⑩ Combustible garbage (burnable garbage) Food scraps, special paper such as fax paper, oily paper, waterproof paper, and photos, Aluminum foil, leather products, plastic products, video tapes, cassette tapes, cloth products containing cotton, etc.
⑪ Non-combustible garbage (non-burnable garbage) Ceramics (plates, tea cups, etc.), pans, kettles, glass cups, broken glass, heat-resistant glass products, wire hangers, cans larger than 20cm, metal caps for bottles and cans, etc.
⑫ Hazardous garbage Batteries, fluorescent lights, light bulbs, cutlery, mirrors, lighters, spray cans, etc.
⑬ Oversized garbage Large size garbage such as furniture, futons, bicycles, etc. ※Take oversize garbage to the waste disposal center (free) or request to have it picked up by calling the Oversize Garbage Disposal Center (☎028-643-5371) (Fee: 830yen per item)
⑭ Garbage that isn't collected Computers, TVs, washing machines, refrigerators, air conditioners, batteries, tires, bathtubs, organs, pianos, motorcycles, medicines, mattresses and sofas with springs, etc. ※Make a request to stores selling such products or an authorized disposal company for disposal

Inquiries: Garbage Reduction Division 028-632-2423

Please put garbage out in the mornings of the designated garbage days at the specified garbage stations. Be sure to use the garbage separation "San(3)R" app which is great for confirming about how to separate garbage and check on the collection days.
